WELLNESS
TIP

It's bug bite season and the best defense against insects is to keep a low profile. Try to avoid looking too much like a flower as insects are attracted to bright-colored clothing, and try to avoid smelling like a flower, perfumes and aftershaves are not insect turn-ons. To prevent insects from coming to outdoor gatherings don't leave food or trash available for them. Do not swat at an irate insect, you will only anger it further, just quickly move away. Should you get stung by something airborne, mix meat tenderizer and water or saliva to a paste consistent with the sting and apply on bite area. A stinger that remains embedded should be scraped out with a fingernail or knife. If dizziness, shortness of breath or difficulty in swallowing occurs after insect bite, get to a medical facility ASAP. You could be suffering from a potentially life-threatening allergic reaction. WELLNESS
TIP

Muscle cramps can strike the fit as well as the flabby. They are caused by a number of factors including dehydration and a shortage of blood flow or splinting, the tightening of a muscle in response to injury or pain. Cramps can usually be treated by stretching the muscle out of its overly contracted condition. For relief of a cramp in the calf muscle, grab the toes and pull them toward the foot and pull toward the kneecap, massage it until the blood flow has been restored. To help ward-off cramps stay adequately hydrated and include plenty of fruits and vegetables in the diet. (Source: Body Bulletin.)

WELLNESS

WHAT NOT TO DO IN BED

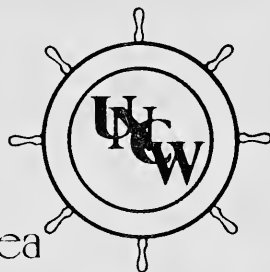

You can read, you can rest,
you can sleep, you can make phone calls,
you can eat breakfast, you can watch T.V.,
you can listen to music, you can exercise,
you can snore, you can even eat crackers--provided you're alone and yes, you can snuggle.
But don't ever light up a cigarette when you're in bed.
Because, if you doze off just once, all your dreams can go up in smoke.

TIP

Suggestions to minimize your risk of acquiring infections from shellfish:

Don't eat raw or improperly cooked shellfish when epidemics of cholera, hepatitis A, or gastrointestinal diseases are reported in areas where shellfish are harvested

Eat shellfish during the cooler months because germs are more plentiful during warm months

Avoid raw shellfish if you have diabetes, cancer, liver or gastrointestinal diseases, or any condition that increases your risks of infection

Buy shellfish from reputable stores and dealers. Shellfish should contain a label indicating place of origin. Avoid roadside bargain deals.

Store shellfish at 32 to 40 degrees F. Although freezing may not kill some germs, such as Salmonella, cold temperatures prevent these bacteria from proliferating

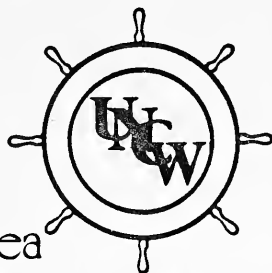

Cooking shellfish long enough kills most germs

What overall effect does the Tax Reform Act of 1986 have on Tax-Deferred Annuities? According to TIAA/CREF the tax act encourages saving for retirement through tax-deferred annuities. Effective January 1 the maximum amount you may be able to defer may be as high as $9,500 per year. These withdrawals from your TDA's accumulation will be taxable as ordinary income at your then effective tax rate. 3/New restrictions on withdrawal of amounts attributable to salary reduction contributions effective 1989. You may want to consult your tax advisor to determine the effect the tax act may have on you. Tax Reform brochures are available in the personnel office.

After considering the following advantages that bonds have to offer call Kay Fryar at 3713 or Cathy Kiger at 3161 in the personnel office. Bonds are payroll deductible.

-Savings Bonds earn variable market-based interest, like money market accounts, if held five years. Current rate is 6.06%

-There are no state or local income tax on interest earned from bonds. You can defer federal tax on accrued interest until they are cashed or mature.

-Bonds are issued and backed by the US Government, making them one of today's safest investments. If lost, stolen or destroyed, they can be replaced upon proof of ownership.

WELLNESS TIP	Sun Safety -- sun before 10 a.m. and after 3 p.m., when the UV rays are the weakest; use a good suntan lotion; be aware that you are not fully protected in the shade of a beach umbrella. UV rays are only partially deflected by the umbrella and they are bouncing toward you from the sand, water, patio floor and deck. Don't count on being safe on a cloudy day or even under water. Seventy to eighty percent of the UV rays' burning power penetrates clouds and overcast, and rays can search you out three-feet under water. A wet T-shirt will also deceive you. Water droplets funnel at least half the UV power to your skin. Be careful of sunglasses, they do cut down on the glare and make you more comfortable, but they may not protect your eyes. As a matter of fact, many sunglasses may actually increase the risk of eye damage. The problem is that the dark hue cuts out short wavelengths in the visible range, but has no effect on the longer rays. The tint makes it easier to look in the sun's direction and can expose your eyes unknowingly to harmful radiation. Several companies now offer products that completely block UV light. Before buying, ask to see the light transmission data. If you are on medication, check with your doctor before sunbathing, as some medications interfere with the body's heat control mechanism or may cause unwanted brown splotching around the face; and avoid alcoholic drinks, including beer, as alcohol causes your body to expel more fluids that you take in. (Source: Wellness at the School Worksite .)

Ease Into Your Work-Out With a Warm-Up. The purpose of warming up is to prepare your body for exercise. Studies show that a warm-up period prior to exercise will help prevent serious electrocardiogram abnormalities which result when vigorous exercise is not preceded by a warm-up period. Proper warm-up may also help prevent muscle pulls, strains, low back discomfort and reduce the extent of muscle soreness. Stretching is no longer considered to be the proper way to warm-up prior to vigorous physical activity, such as jogging, hiking or walking. Experts are now saying that to warm-up you should gradually increase the temperature of the muscle. This can be done by 1/ calisthenics, such as jumping rope 2/ running in place 3/ walking at a moderate pace for 3-5 minutes and 4/ using a stationary bicycle with little or no resistance. A great way to warm-up is to specifically warm-up the body parts to be used in the exercise you will be performing. You can do this by simulating the activity at a low intensity. Example, if you plan to swim start off slow until you are warmed up. A good indication that you have adequately warmed up your muscles is the onset of sweating. Once you have warmed up, you may want to stretch for the purpose of improving your flexibility. It is also equally important to take 5-10 minutes to stretch at the end of your work-out.

WISE MOVE Don't forget to cool-down after exercise: this is just as important as the warm-up. The cool-down is important to maintain the blood flow back to the heart and brain. Blood will pool in your legs and feet if you do not keep your leg muscles moving. This will assist the return of the blood flow back to the heart because without this return of the blood to the heart, you could experience dizziness or even pass out. Five to ten minutes is adequate time to cool-down. Immediately after you finish exercising, take your heart rate to determine if you are in the TARGET HEART RATE ZONE and then walk slowly until you feel you are breathing normally. Swimmers can cool-down by swimming a few laps or walking slowly in the shallow end of the pool. Bikers can cool-down by pedaling slowly at a low resistance. Cooling down with light activity after exercise should help prevent muscle soreness, especially if some stretching for the legs and lower back is done. The WISE tip is provided by the State WISE office in Raleigh.

FYI -- UNCW has CALL WAITING. Basically, this means when you talking on the phone and hear one beep, an on-campus person trying to reach you. When you hear two beeps this indicates that an off-campus person is trying to reach you and is wait on your line. When you hear these beep(s) the person you talking with does not hear them. The person who is calling does not hear a busy tone, rather, they hear a normal ring tone except that there will be a lower pitched beep at the end of each ring. This indicates to the caller that you have heard the CALL WAITING signal and they should wait for you to answer. There are two ways to respond to CALL WAITING -- 1/ Hang up and end your present conversation and your phone will ring, when answer it you will be connected with the waiting caller; 2/ Stay on your present call on HOLD and answer the waiting caller. Some individuals do not have the CALL WAITING feature. If you would like to have this feature call telecommunications at 3555.

The last thing an overweight person needs is an exercise that pounds his/her joints. Walking revs up your metabolism so that you burn more calories; it increases the burning of fat, not muscle. Walking may also help curb your appetite. Also, walking can lift your spirits by stimulating the release of natural mood-elevating chemicals called endorphins. Some researchers have found walking to be helpful in easing depression. In a study at the University of Southern California, researchers found walking to be more effective than a tranquilizer in relieving anxiety. (Source: Prevention Health Magazine)

D-OF-THE AR FUNDS

According to state law, all general fund purchases must be received and paid for by the end of the fiscal year or the funds will be reverted and the merchandise paid for out of the next fiscal year's funds. Purchasing is placing its major emphasis at this time on attempting to receive and pay for all items purchased during the 87-88 fiscal year. They are asking that only requisitions needed right away be sent to the purchasing office for processing. After June 15, only emergency orders will be processed. Requisitions for items to be encumbered out of next year's funds will be held and processed after July 1.

CW GETS NDS FROM AA

UNCW has recently received $1.1 million from the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration to continue its undersea research activities in 1988. Under the direction of Dr. Alan Hulbert, the National Undersea Research Center at UNCW will use the grant to accomplish three main objectives -- undersea research on environmental, fisheries and pollution issues of the continental shelf of the Southeastern United States; development of new diving technology and tools for undersea applications and a new initiative to further the understanding of the ecology of the NC continental shelf and slope.

SWERING CHINES

TO ALL EMPLOYEES: the present university owned telephone equipment was designed and purchased to handle a limited number of answering machines. Current answering machines require from one to five rings before answering and a message can last from 15 seconds to over one minute. A response to the message can vary in length with no limitations. The addition of extended holding times on incoming telephone trunking facilities will require equipment and space in excess of the university's current funding. Until additional funding is obtained -- the vice chancellor for business affairs is asking that all personal answering machines be removed and that only those few machines approved in accordance with University Procedures Manual Tel 1.10 be attached to university owned telephone equipment.

- BREAKTHROUGH IN GENETIC ENGINEERING Dr. Donald F. Kapraun and D. Wilson Freshwater, marine botany researchers here at UNCW, have used genetic engineering techniques to successfully hybridize a seaweed known as green nori that does not reproduce sexually. This particular variety of seaweed, similar to plants such as potatoes and pineapples that must be propagated vegetatively instead of by seeds, has proved impossible to hybridize until now. Research teams in major marine laboratories in mainland China, Japan and other places throughout the U.S. have tried unsuccessfully to produce regenerated hybrid plants. Green nori is an important source to the Japanese diet and is a valuable specialty food item in oriental restaurants and grocery stores in the U.S. Kapraun and Wilson both presented documentation of their discovery during this past week's meeting of the American Society for Cell Biology in Airlie, VA. Others working on the research project included Wilson Freshwater, UNC-Chapel Hill '85, who served as chief collaborator over the past five years; Craig Bailey, rising junior majoring in marine biology; Dr. J. F. Merritt, geneticist and acting director of IMBR, and Dr. Ronald K. Sizemore, a microbiologist and associate professor of biology. Research was funded by the NC Biotechnology Center.

- LIBRARY PARTICIPATES IN PROGRAM Randall Library has been selected by the State Library to serve as one of six pilot libraries for the NC Documents Depository System. Without SEANC's lobbying efforts to keep medical costs down -- an increase in medical premiums would have occurred. Out of 832 registered lobbyists in NC, SEANC's chief lobbyist, Butch Gunnells, a UNC-CH Law School graduate, was ranked as the 13th most effective lobbyist in 1987, three positions behind the University System lobbyist, Jay Robinson. Although the association works for all state employees the success of SEANC depends on the financial and personal support given by these individuals. For $24 a year (payroll deductible you become eligible for a number of member benefits. (Dues will increase $6 effective February 1989.) To become a member call the personnel office at 3392.

The paper describes the results of a four-year project which evaluated the long-term effects of deep sea diving on learning and memory in monkeys. The research, funded by the Office of Naval Research, marks the first attempt by any laboratory to systematically apply standard psychological measures of learning and memory to non-human primates before and after a series of simulated deep dives in compression chambers. SPECIAL EDITION

TRAFFIC FLOW CHANGES ON CAMPUS

As you may have noticed, the North Carolina Department of Transportation is installing a new traffic signal at the intersection of South College Road and Adrian Hurst Drive. Once this light is fully activated, Adrian Hurst Drive will become the primary southern entrance to the University.

When this light is activated, we will close Riegel Road beside the Natatorium. Access to Parking Lot K will be maintained.

In addition to these major changes in the entrances from South College Road, bus riders should note a change in routes and bus stops which we expect to occur in mid-December. All bus traffic will enter the campus on Street G near the water tower and turn west on Randall Drive. All stops and pick-ups will be at the new turn out on Randall Drive near DeLoach Hall. Permission has been given the City to install a bus shelter at this location.

A new parking area is nearing completion beside Lot S. It is located parallel to Lot S and is just west of the new cafeteria construction site. Access to these new parking spaces can be from the new extension of Randall Drive and also from Street F.

As University Community members adjust to these traffic flow changes, we urge all drivers to be cautious.
